With over two decades of experience in software engineering, I focus on leading the design and delivery of scalable, high-performance systems that solve complex, real-world problems. I'm motivated by turning ambitious ideas into reliable, production-ready platforms and I thrive in collaborative environments where strong teams drive meaningful outcomes.

My background spans cloud architecture, real-time and distributed systems and building resilient services at scale. Alongside my core engineering work, I've expanded into areas such as simulation, graphics, and applied AI, strengthening my ability to approach problems from both technical and experiential perspectives.

I've led cross-functional teams across startup and enterprise settings, delivering complex projects from concept through to execution. I bring a balance of hands-on technical depth and strategic leadership, with a focus on fostering innovation, aligning engineering efforts with business goals.
